

Big Question: What is the significance of Guru Nanak to the Sikh Community?

Cut out the pictures and stick them in the correct order to show the story of Guru Nanak.

Guru Nanak travelled to different parts of India to teach about God's message. People who listened to him were known as 'Sikhs' (learners).

After many journeys outside India, Guru Nanak settled in Kartarpur on the banks of the River Ravi.

When Nanak was 28 years old, he disappeared for three days. Everyone feared he had died while bathing in the river.

Nanak went to live with his sister after he angered his father by buying food for a group of monks instead of buying and reselling something for a profit.

Nanak was born a Hindu. He was curious about God at a young age.

There is only God's path and I shall follow God's path.
Nanak reappeared saying he had been with God and that he would be following God's path from now on.

When he died, Guru Nanak's body was covered with a sheet. Hindus and Muslims he had known argued about his funeral until they looked under the sheet and found flowers instead of the body. They realised it was Guru Nanak's way of ensuring they would not argue.

Guru Nanak's message is not easy to sum up. But he stood for equality, community, generosity and the continuous remembering of God.

As young people in our world today, what do you want for our future? What are your hopes?
